This course is open to everyone who wants to think more about what reading does for them--how books inform, bemuse, delight, and surprise us--and who wants to learn how to identify specific techniques writers use to invite us into the worlds they create, and to keep us reading, and to find ways of getting us to think about their work even after we finish reading it.

Class #3553
Contemporary World Literature
Th 1:00PM-4:40PM
Bisynchronous Online Class